

PEO introduces online leadership modules

One of PEO's strategic initiatives is the introduction of leadership web modules that will develop the leadership skills within PEO's volunteer base as well as enhance the common understanding of PEO's regulatory mandate, roles, responsibilities, and governance among its volunteers.

In December 2016, PEO introduced two online leadership development modules:

Our Mandate

Regulating and advancing engineering practice to protect the public interest

PEO – Our Mandate – Focused on what it means to be a self-regulating profession; and looks at PEO's enabling legislation, its powers and responsibilities as well as how its mandate differs from other engineering organizations. The module explores the relationship between the people of Ontario represented by the Attorney General and the engineering profession represented by PEO, outlining the obligations of each under this social contract as well as the value proposition for the self-regulation of the engineering profession.

Chairing Effective Meetings

Regulating and advancing engineering practice to protect the public interest

Chairing Effective Meetings – Effective, well-run meetings will help your chapter, committee or working group reach its goals. This module explains how to effectively chair meetings to ensure they are productive, useful and enjoyable. The role of the chair and the key competencies of a good chair will be explored as well as how to recognize potential problems and how to manage conflict through collaborative problem resolution techniques. This module will also reveal tips for chairing virtual meetings conducted via technology such as teleconferencing and videoconferencing.

To access the leadership development online modules, please follow these steps:

1. Go to PEO's website, under the Resources tab: http://www.peo.on.ca/index.php/ci_id/30268/la_id/1.htm
2. Go to <https://peo.lts-online.net/home>
3. Click on Enroll Now, then click on either Register Now (if you are a new user) or on Log In (if you are already registered as a user on the system)
4. Click on Launch Course to view the video.
